I see her where the budding May Throws shadows on the grassy way and flecks her side of white: Unseen I watch her as she stands, With fragrent havelises in her hands, A wishin of deligible

Son stays, but will not tarry long The hear the thrust's versal song. In blesson bour in meters, And in my sheltered garden seat L. ma. can bear the card sweet of songetter's happy love.

From out the leaves that shade my face.
I waich her in her girlish grace.
The daughter of my friend,
On whose awest life, for whose sweet sake.
Leve hath such precious things at stake.
In whose such heart-ties blend.

My May day maiden! Thought runs back O'er that long treaden, small track. My sen evanished youth. When I, like her, was young and fair, like her, untouched by worldly care, Unscared by innova limits.

Like her, with sursbine on my way With scented bine-ours of 15c s May Fincked rough to my hand; Like her, sunbarked on hope wiful tide For joy's gind port, and by my side True love at my command.

But shidows dimmed my summer day, The hidospice of my early May. Lie buried in a rare. Hope a lide whisel out after from port, and left my little bark the aport Of fortune a wind and wave.

Ah well? The thrush's song is done, and she steps fucered in the sun. She comes towed my source. To giad my weste, tear-dimmed eyes, To lay before me, as a prize. For sprays of hawthern flower.

best heart! She brings me more than May, the smallpht of a far-off day Shines on me from her face, her heart romews for mins the neath, The hope and springtide of its youth Is all their early grace.

She looks at me with eyes of love like those the torf has lain above For many a weary day; and hows her? For she british again, and hows her? For she british again, access a lifetime's ellent pain. By unforgotten May? From All the Year Round.

Emile de Girardin, it is well-known, lived on Emile de Girardin, it is well-known, lived on the most unfriendly terms with his second wife. The house was large enough to permit them to diversel entirely separate from one another. One day Makame de Girardin had an important com-munication to make to her husband. Taking a small sheet of paper she wrote: "The Bondoir to the Literary Would like to go to Switzerland." M. de Girardin, imitating her concise style, re-spended: "The Library to the Bondoir: Go."

nat was all. The Prince of Wales has become very popular during his visit to Pesth. Count Andrassay told him at a public dinner that he had, by his frank him at a public cinner that he had, by his frank and amiable manner, taken every Hungarian by storm. He predicted that the Prince would make as excellent a sovereign as he was now charming as a man. The Prince bought, during his visit, four magnificent Hungarian horses and soveral sets of the gorgeous national costumes of the Magyars, adorned with remarkable jewels and native gems of great value. There was one picturesque incident about the wedding of Stephanis. No sooner was the ceremony concluded than the High Master of Ceremonies, stepping forward, requested all the Belgians in waiting on the Princess—the stewards, chambertains and ladies—to follow him, and tedthem away: their duties were at an end, for Princess Stephanic was now an Austrian. Next instant the Master of Geremonies appeared at the head of a new correge of ladies and gentlemen in waiting accredited to the Crown Princess—this time Austrinus and Hungarians. This part of the occupany was, perhaps, the most impressive of all, and the Crown Princess was deeply moved.

The Circumicention Office has been established in Australia, and this is how they manage things in Victoria. The clock stopped in a magnistrate a court, and the chairman of the Bench had the honor to bring it under the notice of the Secretary of the Law Department. The letter, duly docketed, stamped and red-inked, was forwarded by the Accountant of the Law Department to the Secretary of Pathic Works. The Imspector writes a letter back to the Secretary of Public Works, who forwards it to the Accountant of the Law Department. By this time nearly a week has elapsed when the medistrate gets a note through the clerk of the petty sessions, making the inquiry from the Secretary of the Law Department. "Is the clock now going?" It was not. And we probably have an account of the further proceedings by this Australian vanil.

Professor Fawestt's energy has been eclipsed by Mr. F. J. Campbell principal of the Royal Normal College kind Academy of Missic for the Riind, at Upper Norwood, who has accomplished the remarkable feat of climbing Mont Blanc. It was not he says, a modern, reckless undertaking. It was the result of a fixed purpose, and was only undertaken after a long and careful preparation, in order to carry on his work on behalf of the blind, it is necessary to keep up his plack, energy, and determination. Skating, swimming, rowing, and determination. Skating, swimming, rowing, riding, have all contributed their share to this end, and last year he went to Switzerland to try secondarin climbing. The experiment was highly successful, and this year he went again, accompanied by his wife, son, and Frince Alexander George of Hesse.
